COD LIVER OIL

Is a wonderful medicine and has done good work in its day, and but for its disagreeable taste and odor would be used as much today as in former years. In these days of modern pharmacy the calls are for medicines that are agreeable and pleasant to the patient's palate.

Cod Liver Oil Extract Compound

While containing all the medicinal properties of Cod Liver Oil, is so prepared that the disagreeable taste and odor of the oil is entirely removed. Its beneficial effect in illness is the same as Cod Liver Oil. Try it.

Also best stock of Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil just received.

EDGELY ETCHINGS

Mrs. William L. Johnson, of Riverview, spent the forepart of the week with Philadelphia friends.

The explosion of the acetylene gas plant on the D. Landreth seed farm last week caused a number of our residents to think of earthquakes. The shock was plainly felt by the people at Edgely and Riverview.

The Edgely Euchre Club held its regular meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adams at Edgely, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Girton, who are erecting a new house on the pike at this place expect to be able to eat their Christmas dinner in their new home. The work is progressing nicely and a heating plant will be put in this week. Mr. Girton recently retired from the linoleum business in Bristol and will make Edgely his future home.

Samuel Vandegrift, who recently purchased a home at Headley Manor, has made a number of improvements to the property. He has erected a new porch in the rear of the house, put up a fine new barn and is now erecting an up-to-date chicken house. Mr. Vandegrift recently sold his farm and is now going to retire from hard work.

The high winds of Sunday caused the river to be very high and several stretches of stone wall were washed out along the banks at this place. A number of rowboats were also cast adrift but were all recovered.

The turkey has been secured for the big shooting match to be held at Headley Manor on Saturday afternoon, November 22d. It is a fine bird and all are invited to come and try to win it.

A number of new hot houses are in course of erection on the D. Landreth seed farms at this place and when completed will add considerably to the facilities of the firm for raising plants for early setting out in the spring.

The trolley waiting room at the corner of Radcliffe street and Edgely avenue has proven a great convenience to the residents of Headley Manor who have to come to that place to catch a car.

It is now stated that it is hardly likely that the electric lights will be put in operation at Headley Manor before spring. The poles are nearly all in position but the rest of the apparatus is not in readiness.

There was a good attendance at the session of the Headley M. E. Sunday school last Sunday and all of our residents are invited to come and see how interesting the services are.

Donald Eisenberg bagged a number of ducks on the river last week. Donald is becoming a crack wing shot.

Mrs. A. J. Frazier, of Riverview, has returned from a visit with relatives at Hanksonville, N. J.

Mrs. Tillie Campbell, of Headley Manor, who has been seriously ill several weeks, is reported as being somewhat improved at this writing.

Andalusia Articles.

Mrs. Sutton, of Allentown, was here visiting her son the past week.

Mrs. Ladd, of Texas, has been visiting her brother, Dorrance Wright, for several weeks.

Miss Martie and Miss Ethel, daughters of Joseph States, are both ill with typhoid fever.

Mrs. H. Eckert and sons spent the past week in Bristol.

Mrs. Charles Howell and her daughters, who spent the summer in Europe, are now at their country home. They will open their town house, 1523 Walnut street, for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Johnson, of Paoli, is spending several days here with her daughter.

Prayer meeting was held last week at E. Covert's.

A play was given on Saturday evening in All Saints school building for the benefit of Clover Nook Home.

Mrs. Bunting has had as her guest the past week Mrs. Howell, of Bristol.

Charles Gilbert has returned home after visiting his daughter in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Reading Hendricks and daughter, Florence, of Bristol, spent Friday with Mrs. Weiss.

How to Make Hens Lay in the Winter Time.

Early in 1912 the State Department of Agriculture issued a hundred page book, liberally illustrated on "Increasing the Winter Yield of Eggs." This edition, of twenty-five thousand copies, was quickly exhausted and inquiries for it kept pouring in until there were many thousands on the waiting list.

Hence the Legislature of last winter passed a special bill authorizing another edition of this book and same is now ready for distribution. At a most opportune time too, for few people are able to get eggs from their hens in the winter time.

This special edition is likely to be exhausted as quickly as the first, for it was prepared by W. Theodore Wirtman, one of the most successful and well-known poultrymen in the country, and those of our readers wishing it, can have it free, by addressing the Department of Agriculture, Harrisburg, at an early date and asking for same.

The hotel bell-boy will lose his chief occupation when the vacuum cold water bottles are in general use in hotels. They form part of one of the fixtures of each room, and water placed in them will remain cold for two days.

The police authorities of Hamburg have made a regulation ordering tramway car conductors under penalty of losing their licenses not to allow women with unprotected hatpins to remain in their cars. The police are also ordered to take the names and addresses of all women with unprotected hatpins, who are liable to a fine of from $5 to $10.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Bristol People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Disordered kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions may be dark, contain sediment.

Passages are sometimes frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is often present day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells may occur.

Weakened kidneys should receive quick help.

Don't delay; Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

Bridgewater evidence proves their worth.

J. C. Keen, Bridgewater, Pa., says: "We have used Doan's Kidney Pills in our family and have found them to be a good remedy for kidney trouble. I have often heard one of the family say that no other kidney remedy ever did him as much good as Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

REVIEW OF EVENTS AT COUNTY SEAT

Interesting Correspondence from Our Doylestown Representative.

Doylestown, November 12.

Election is over, the votes counted and the candidates who were successful are all happy. In Bucks county things went just as they were expected to go and Grundy was given an endorsement and another lease of power. The defeat of ex-Senator Webster Grim was the real surprise of the election and it demonstrated the fact that in a state election, at least, the man with the longest purse is the man who will win. Everybody in the county seat of all shades of political faith looked on Grim's election as a candidate for Superior Court Judge as almost a certainty and in the event of his defeat looked on Alcorn as the winning man. Kephart was not considered in the fight until the votes were counted, but it is the unexpected that will always happen.

There was some queer voting all through the county and some very queer returns. One return for Justice of the Peace does not even have the name of the election district on it and instead of saying the election officers were duly sworn it states that they were "voted for."

The new law regulating the hours of women's work has created quite a good deal of excitement at the county seat and has resulted in the closing of the stores every evening in the week but Saturday evening and in some cases the girls will not have to go to work as early in the morning as they have been doing. Fifty-four hours a week is nine hours a day and if three hours extra are taken for Saturday evening it naturally follows that the three hours will have to come off of some of the other days in the week but next spring there will be a strong movement here in favor of closing every Wednesday at noon and thus gaining about six hours that may come in handy on some of the other days the stores are open and if the stores close for six months on Wednesday afternoons it will soon be a closing all the year.

At last the six miles of turnpike from Doylestown to Plumsteadville, owned by two companies, has been condemned and the damages assessed by a jury. The Danboro pike received an award of four thousand seven hundred and sixty dollars although their claim was about four times more than that and the Plumsteadville end, with an equally high claim in proportion received twenty-three hundred and fifty dollars. These two turnpikes now belong to the State of Pennsylvania and the parties who have worked so hard to get them into state control seem to have jumped out of the frying pan into the fire. The Easton trolley company who leased the pikes from the two companies had no money for repairs, the company themselves, unless they assess their stockholders for the par value of their stock are in equally bad plight financially and the defeat of the fifty million dollar road amendment puts the State in the same class with the trolley company and the pike and as the State cannot be indicted for nuisance very handily it looks as though the township of Plumsteadville would sooner or later have to assume the burden of practically rebuilding the two roads, unless the county seat helps foot the bills.

Last Sunday the county seat was again visited by a fierce storm. While there was a great deal of rain that fell the wind did the most damage, houses were unroofed, trees blown down and worst of all the electric light system was short circuited and many families depending on electricity for lighting purpose had to hunt up lamps and candles to see them through the night. Some hail fell and on Monday morning there was a light snow for a few minutes resulting in much colder weather and causing many heaters to be put into quick commission.

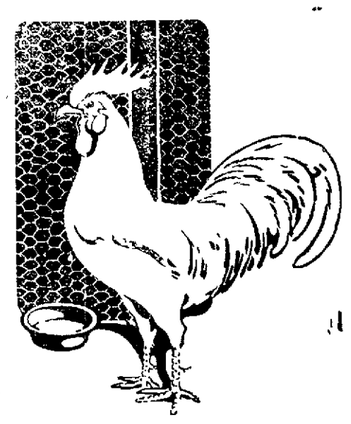
At a meeting held at the office of John L. Du Bois, Esq., the four patriotic orders of the county seat decided to form a permanent organization looking forward to the formation of a similar organization of all the patriotic orders of the whole county for mutual aid and protection from slanderous attacks. The organization will not be political in its character for there are other ways of reaching men than politics and from present indications all of the patriots will soon be needed to defend the flag in Mexico as well as at home. This is a good move and comes at an opportune time and will doubtless meet with success.

Nearly five thousand gunner's licenses have been issued by the county treasurer up to this time in Bucks countians only. It looks as though all of the young men and a considerable number of the old ones were sportsmen. Some of our local men have tried the Pocono mountains trip this season but with little luck. Some met with a very rainy time, others report a plentitude of gunners and corresponding scarcity of game and it looks as though the new gunning license act has had strong tendency to make gunners of men who had not thought of it before or if they did go gunning only went out a couple of times a year but who now go much oftener just because they have the licenses to go and want to get their money's worth.

Saturday, November 15, will be a big day at the county seat, possibly one of the most important days in its history, for on that day the suffragists, suffragettes or whatever they prefer in the way of a name, will impart in automobiles several college girls, exact number not given, who will make addresses, distribute literature and do numerous other stunts in the interest of "votes for women." Bachelors of uncertain age, but not necessarily old, widowers and other unsuccessful men will receive special attention and a strong force will employ around the court house to prevent the escape of the desirable, unwedded men to be found within its precincts while some of the most captivating damsels will enter the building and lay siege to the treasurer's office, quarter session's office and other vulnerable points. It is within the bounds of possibility, yes, even probability, that Judge Ryan may be asked to make an order by which the capture of the most desirable parties may be expedited and Clerk of Orphans' Court Michener is preparing for a busy day in the marriage license department of his office. It is also proposed to start an educational branch here by which those who are not sufficiently informed of the arguments that may be used to secure their rights will have ample opportunity to post themselves and lay out cold any mere man who attempts to put up an argument with them.

Among poultrymen here there is a strong feeling that the Indian Runner Duck may eventually become a strong business rival of the hen. Experiments are being made with them to test their laying capacity and from records kept it would seem that they lay about as many eggs as the ordinary run of hens and that their egg laying capacity may be increased and then, too, it is claimed that their eggs are large and, proportionately, contain more nutriment than those of our old stand-by, the hen. One thing is sure and that is that the housekeeper will welcome any method that will bring the price of eggs down to a point where they are within reach of those whose incomes are not the subject of curiosity upon the part of the income tax collector.

$700,000,000 a Year in Poultry—Are You Getting Your Share?



If eggs go to 75 cents a dozen before Christmas, and table poultry follows the upward trend of prices, you will want to know more about how to turn the flow of dollars to your pocket.

Plain, practical poultry articles are printed every Friday in the Agricultural Section of the PUBLIC LEDGER—written by Michael K. Boyer, one of the foremost poultry producers of the country, one who knows how to get his share. This week he tells how to get the best returns from the incubator. He shows that because a man has run an incubator does not prove that he knows all about getting maximum results.

The Pennsylvania potato grower can learn many things from the world-champion potato farmers of Maine, and this is the theme of a notable article this week by W. F. McSparran, a Pennsylvania agricultural expert who is now studying conditions at first hand in the land of bumper potato crops.

Every Friday the PUBLIC LEDGER prints a special Agricultural Section which is filled with helpful and timely articles by practical farm experts, and the farm, crop, and market news of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and the Delaware-Maryland Peninsula. The Friday issue of the daily PUBLIC LEDGER may be subscribed for separately at one dollar a year by mail.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus S. Kenderdine was the scene of a joyous occasion on Wednesday, November 12th, when they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. In the evening between the hours of seven and nine they tendered a reception to their many relatives and friends from many places, all of whom were glad to offer their congratulations to this prominent bride and groom of fifty years, who have spent most of that time residing in Newtown.

Brussels leads the world in a new industry which promises to alleviate man's inconveniences on a rainy day. A company has just been formed with a capital of $1,000,000 for the purpose of lending umbrellas to those who need them. Here is the scheme: A man pays a premium of $1 a year and in case a storm suddenly comes up while he is on his way to the office. Instead of making for the nearest shelter he drops into the first shop he comes to, be it a cafe, a restaurant or a tobacco shop. He presents his aluminum disc and receives in return an umbrella. When the shower is over it is not necessary to return the umbella to the place where he got it. All he does is to step into any shop displaying the sign of the umbrella organization and turn in his "pepin," in exchange for which he receives another disc. The scheme has great possibilities and it remains to be seen if it will be prosperous.

The Changing Luck.

"There's a certain type of financier," said a townsman, "who, in his greed for wealth, loses his humanity. He becomes, in fact, a fac-simile of Peter Doddedum. Peter Doddedum was a fairly successful grocer. He was delivering some groceries in his wagon one morning, when he ran down and badly injured an old lady. The old lady sued him and got big damages. Well, a few months after, Doddedum was on his rounds again, when he ran down and crippled an old gentleman. The old gentleman also sued, and so large were the damages awarded him by a generous jury that poor Doddedum found himself actually on the verge of ruin. One morning about this time, Doddedum's young son rushed into the shop in great excitement. 'Father!' he cried. 'Father! Mother's been run over by old Gobus Goldie's ninety-horse power touring car!' The grocer's eyes filled with tears, and in a voice tremulous with deep feeling, he exclaimed: 'Thank Heaven, the luck changed at last!'"

The Daily Gloom has ceased its pessimistic forebodings since election

According to the list of taxable inhabitants the number of slaves and deaf and dumb persons in Bucks county returned to Joseph Heister Governor of Pennsylvania, in 1821 there were in this county at that time 8,300 inhabitants seventeen deaf and dumb persons and six slaves

The Hon Joseph Ridgeway Grundy, as president of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, is out in a communication urging members of his association to obey the provisions of the new law governing the employment of women and girls It is a "consummation devoutly to be hoped for" that hereafter he will be equally solicitous in urging those directly responsible to him to observe the law relative to elections

In refusing the right of citizenship to an applicant who admitted he was engaged in the liquor business Judge C A Pollock of North Dakota expressed his views when he declared the rights of citizenship should not be conferred upon a man engaged in the liquor business Besides having the requisite qualifications as to residence, etc a person who applies for citizenship in the United States, should also satisfy the judge before whom he appears that he would make a desirable citizen

"They cannot satisfy this judge that a man who sells intoxicating liquor is a desirable citizen" said Judge Pollock It is a statutory offence in this State and I hold that the man who will engage in such a business in this enlightened age is not a proper person to become a citizen of the United States

Judge Pollock is regarded in North Dakota as the father of the prohibition law,' that being one of the States barring the sale of liquor

The political campaign in Pennsylvania next year will be a lively affair, with a Governor United States Senator Congressman and members of the Legislature to elect Theodore Roosevelt has promised to devote as much time as the Progressive leaders desire him to in speech making in this State The ex President is particularly desirous of paying a debt he owes Boies Penrose for the criminal work the latter aided in at Chicago when a Republican nomination for President was stolen

The country hayseed is a favorite joke for the city papers and the impecunious space writers of the dailies love to portray the tiller of the soil as a man who never saw much and knows less. Were it not for the farmers, the receipts of the fair would be mighty slim and he does not make a holy show of himself either as the writers try to make out The pale cadaver who write harmless soulless lies such as the above to please simple folks like themselves could not get a living on a quarter section of the best land in the country if it were donated to them with improvements stock and tools So limited is their reading and their powers of observation that they have not learned that the American farm produces the best all around men in the world

In all probability B Penrose will be the only candidate at the primaries for the Republican nomination for United State Senator Therefore he should be successful At the November election next year there will be other candidates on the ticket and the people will vote direct for their choice for Senator imagine result!

Nowhere is a woman's character more clearly shown or her talents given more scope for cultivation than in home making and in no sphere is the true woman more content and happier than in housekeeping Home is indeed the dearest place on earth when rightly made and the memory of which remains with us until death and will do more to protect and restrain its inmates than the grandest and most eloquent sermons from the most gifted ministers and orators In short, home is the kindergarten of all Christian work and influence the starting point of all beautiful thoughts and deeds

We have the information from an official of the institution that 7 per cent. of the inmates in the Eastern Pennsylvania State Institute for Feeble Minded, at Spring City Chester county, are the children of foreigners This immense institution lately constructed by the State at a cost of over three-quarters of a million dollars and costs $150,000 a year to maintain has reached its capacity and forms a permanent charge upon the State This heavy burden we believe is directly traceable to defective immigration laws

Writing in The Survey Doctor Sprague, of the United States Public Health Service calculates that we are admitting annually about three thousand mental defectives and an equal number that are or will become insane

The fault is not with the administration at Ellis Island—where nine tenths of all immigrants arrive—but with Congress Doctor Sprague finds that for the fiscal year 1912 the Government spent eight cents and a fraction a head for inspection of aliens at the island You do not need a scientific education to tell how much medical inspection eight cents will pay for

Could not the Government afford to pay as much as one-tenth of the head tax it charges all immigrants for the purpose of having them examined—or even half the tax? Could not it afford to buy a quarter or a half as much medical examination as every life insurance company requires before writing a policy?

There are 10,000,000 dozens of eggs now in cold storage in this State Eggs stored in April will be out-lawed in December, the eight month's limit for storage having expired The Pure Food Commissioner promises that if any attempt is made to sell these eggs after the time limit has expired he will have the sellers arrested and prosecuted The penalty is fine and imprisonment

GRUNDY URGES LAW'S OBEDIENCE

Manufacturers' Association Asks Members Not to Fight Labor Act

The Pennsylvania Manufacturers Association of which Joseph R Grundy of Bristol is president and which recently opened permanent headquarters in the Land Title Building on Saturday sent an open letter to its members in Wilkes Barre urging them to co-operate with the Department of Labor and Industry to the utmost of their ability in the strict enforcement of the new Woman's Employment law

The letter was prompted by a dispatch in the morning newspapers from Wilkes Barre to the effect that candy manufacturers proprietors of moving picture theatres and others had announced their intention of disregarding the law and fighting out their "rights" in Court if necessary The letter which went out to more than twenty members of the association reads as follows

It has come to the attention of the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association that there is a well defined movement among certain business interests in Wilkes Barre to defy the new Women's Employment Law We urge all of our members in Wilkes-Barre not only to obey the law themselves in letter and in spirit but to use their utmost influence to persuade others to do so

If the law works hardships in special instances the best way to demonstrate the fact is to enforce it No matter where the shoe may pinch it is the duty of every honest and upright manufacturer in Pennsylvania to co operate with the Department of Labor and Industry in the enforcement of every law pertaining to labor and industry

We feel confident that none of our members have given any support to this incipient rebellion against the new statute but we wish to urge your active resistance to it, as well as to commend your non participation in it

Card from Thomas Ross.

Doylestown November 6, 1913

Editor Gazette Through the medium of your paper if you will grant the privilege I wish to express to the Democrats and others my great appreciation of the honor they did me on Tuesday by casting so great a number of votes for me for Common Pleas Judge As they know these votes were wholly unsolicited by me and yet upwards of eighteen hundred men wrote on the ballot the name of a man who had ceased to be a candidate I would indeed be cold hearted if I failed to make any acknowledgment of such an act an act which must be regarded rather as a protest than as a personal tribute

To all those who voted and worked so hard to elect municipal and county officers in opposition to the Grundy machine let me say While you fell short of accomplishing all you had hoped for, some things you did secure and you reduced the old time majorities But better than that your cause was just, you fought for the rights of the people of the county Keep at it at every opportunity Every political boss is doomed to defeat sooner or later

Very truly yours,
THOS ROSS

November Court

The regular November term of Argument and Miscellaneous Court was opened at Doylestown on Monday morning with Judge William C Ryan on the bench

A number of cases were passed dismissed continued or withdrawn

Margaret Reinolt Mary Hunter and Charles Brady pleaded guilty to the charge of nuisance Officer Bird of Bristol was called and testified that on the night of November 2, all were intoxicated One of the girls was so badly intoxicated that she could not walk and the other two were helping her They were arrested but at 10 o clock the next morning she was not yet in condition to have the hearing The girls were colored but the man was white

Margaret Reinolt aged 18 years was placed on probation under M Peirce of Bristol

Mary Hunter sister of Miss Reinolt was sentenced to four months in jail

Charles Brady was sentenced to six months in jail The court told him that he appeared to be guilty of very disgraceful conduct

Howard O Housel pleaded guilty to forgery Lewis C Leedom was called and testified that the defendant had worked for Henry Comfort of Yardley Mr Leedom testified to cashing a check for him drawn by Henry Comfort, but which turned out a forgery A number of checks were found on the defendant when he was taken into custody A note book was also found Housel was sentenced to not less than two and one half years nor more than ten years in the Eastern Penitentiary The court said from information at hand the defendant appeared to be the son of a respectable father

ANNUAL MISSIONARY MEETING HELD HERE

A Dozen Churches of Philadelphia Presbytery Represented and Fine Programme Rendered.

The annual district meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of Philadelphia North Presbytery, third district, was held in the Bristol Presbyterian church, Monday the 10th, in the afternoon. The district included the churches of New Hope, Brownsburg, Carversville, Doylestown, Mechanicsville, Langhorne, Newtown, Eddington, Forest Grove, Morrisville and Bristol, and representatives from most of these churches were present. Mrs. A. M. Barnes of Germantown, who is president of the Foreign Missionary Society, presided. Mrs. M. A. Stout, president of the Home Missionary Society, was prevented by illness from attending. After brief devotional service, Mrs. James S. McCracken, of Germantown, made an earnest practical address on "Our Aim," showing what the aim should be in missionary work. She urged an effort to increase the numbers, the knowledge of the work, the gifts and the prayers, and spoke of the many needs both in our own land and in heathen and non-Christian countries.

After prayer and singing of a hymn, Mrs. Frederick M. Paist, of Langhorne, was introduced, and gave a bright and suggestive address, her topic being: "The World Vision, and Our Wider View." She spoke of the narrow limits within which most of us lived, confining our vision to our own family, social circle, town, or own country, and of the necessity of taking the broader view, seeing in some degree the whole needy, sin-sick world, realizing that we were all children of the one Father, and that we are linked together in most wonderful ways. She spoke of our needing to clear away the mists of prejudice that often blinded our vision, and seeing in the poor immigrant not merely a "stranger and alien," but a sister or brother, one of Christ's "little ones." Her talk was practical and searching, illustrated by pertinent anecdotes and at the close, every thoughtful listener felt that the speaker had touched on some of her own weak points.

Miss V. F. Penrose spoke of the number of dolls that are to be sent to mission schools in China, Japan and India, and of what the gift of a doll from America meant to the girls. A very interesting exercise was then given, called "A Swift Survey." In this six took part, representing an immigrant girl, a Mormon, a New Mexican, a Chinese, a woman from India and a missionary from Africa each of these was costumed for her part, and spoke briefly of the needs of her special country or section.

One of the features of the afternoon was the singing and recitations given by a number of the Italian pupils of the Presbyterian mission, here. Mrs. Annie W. Croom and Dr. J. H. Slack conducted this part of the meeting, and the dark-eyed children appealed to all hearts as they sang heartily, and recited in English some of the blessed words of our Lord.

Dr. Burns closed the meeting with prayer and benediction afterwhich all present were invited to enter the primary room for a "social hour." It was no misnomer, for the spirit of genuine sociability reigned and all enjoyed meeting and chatting with one another, and also enjoyed the delicious coffee, sandwiches and olives served by a committee of Bristol ladies. Many of those present expressed their appreciation of the hospitality of the Bristol Presbyterian church, and voted the meeting one of the most helpful and interesting ever held.

Rev. Mr. Perenzin pastor of the Italian church, was present, and the workers of the Presbytery were very glad to meet him, and to wish him success in his work.

Start Today for Florida.

A party of Bristolians leave this morning for Jacksonville, Florida, to attend the annual session of the Atlantic Deeper Waterway Association. The party will leave Bristol on Navigation Commissioners tug, M. S. Quay, and go to Philadelphia, where transfer will be made to the steamer Persian, of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company. A stop will be made at Savannah, Ga., both going and returning.

The party consists of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. H. Poole, Dr. and Mrs. J. deB. Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. Armand V. Morris and son, Lardner; W. C. Peirce, Frank Abbott and Miss Lillias Keim. They expect to return the 25th inst. Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Doron will also attend the convention, leaving here on Sunday, going by rail.

A Good Fire Record.

In the annual report of the fire chief of the borough, sixteen alarms were reported for the year, with a loss of $1,153 on buildings and contents. Of these one was the old ice plant with a loss of $1000 and the stables of the Standard Pipe Foundry, with a loss of $1,500, both outside of the borough limits. This leaves a combined loss of $1,535 for fourteen fires in the borough. It speaks well for the efficiency of Bristol's Fire Department.

Surprise Party.

A number of friends of Miss Helen Roche, of 617 Pine street, surprised her on Friday evening last, when they called to spend the evening with her. Games of various kinds were played. She was the recipient of several very pretty presents. Refreshments were served. Those present were: Misses Mary McGee, Grace McCarry, Florence McCarry, Mary Molden, Rose McHugh, Theresa McIlvaine, Sadie Waters, Grace McCarry, Fanny Thompson, Messrs. Leonard Roche, Joseph Dugan, Leonard Ferry, James Roche, William Callahan, James McIlvaine, Edward McIlvaine, Daniel McConnell, John McGee and William Brady.

Gertrude Roche Surprised.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered Miss Gertrude Roche at her home, 617 Pine street, Saturday evening, and was spent in playing games of various kinds. Several piano selections were rendered by Miss Gertrude Roche, Alfred Darrah and William Dignan, vocal solos by Cecilia Kelly, Joseph O'Donnell and Joseph Drake. The hostess was the recipient of many gifts. Luncheon was served at a seasonable hour.

Among those present were: Misses Winifred Kelly, Regina Boyle, Cecilia Kelly, Madeline Ennis, Isabelle McFadden, Nora McGee, Frances McFadden, Marie Roche and Gertrude Roche; Messrs. George Hermann, Walter Wildman, of Tullytown; Joseph O'Donnell, Howard O'Donnell, Alfred Darrah, Walter Darrah, Howard Ritchie, of Trenton; Joseph Drake, of New York; William Dignan, of Philadelphia, James and Laurence Roche.

A Mothers' Meeting.

On November 20th, at 3.30 p. m., there will be a mothers' meeting in the auditorium of the Jefferson avenue school.

An interesting programme will be given by the pupils, also reading and discussion of papers by parents.

SHORT SESSION OF BOROUGH COUNCIL

The regular monthly meeting of borough council was held on Monday evening in the council chamber with the following absentees—Strauser, Kilcoyne, Mulligan, Singer and Hoffman.

The Police committee reported twenty arrests during the month of October, four for assault and battery, one for non-support, four for disorderly conduct, eleven for drunkenness. Ten street lights were reported out during the month and one hundred and two tramps were given lodging.

The term of Dr. Howard Pursell having expired as a member of the Board of Health, he was reappointed by the president and the appointment approved.

The report of the Chief of the Fire Department was received and filed, and the recommendations of the chief referred to the new council.

In the report of the Chief, he spoke of two reconstructed auto trucks that are for sale and recommended their purchase for the use of the fire department. Councilman Spring, of the Fifth ward, spoke against the recommendation, referring to the repairs needed by the two now in use. He said that No. 5 company needed apparatus and that they were entitled to some consideration, and he advocated the purchasing of a new machine for them.

The Chief's report was as follows: "Your Chief of the Fire Department herewith begs leave to submit his annual report of the department from September 9, 1912 to and including September 8, 1913. All of the apparatus and hose are in good serviceable condition. I have been carefully investigating the cost of purchasing two automobile chassis. Both to be equipped with a 35 gallon chemical tank and sufficient room to carry not less than 700 feet of 2 1-2 inch hose. I find there are two Lozier Car Chassis on the market which can be bought for $600 a piece, and, in all probability, at a lower figure if a full cash payment was made. It would cost about $600 a piece to equip these machines as above indicated, and I know it would add very much to the present efficiency of our department if the borough could see its way clear to spend at least $2100 for this purpose. The Lozier car is acknowledged by every one to be one of the best, most powerful and strongest automobiles built, and therefore, the borough would make no mistake whatever in buying these two machines, because I consider them a bargain. Both of the automobiles were built in 1911. They, of course, are not new cars, but are in excellent condition, and the success which we have already experienced with the two automobiles of the No. 1 and No. 3 companies proves conclusively that automobile fire apparatus is a positive success, because, I believe, with the exception of one occasion when an alarm of fire was sounded the two automobiles have always responded promptly. I hope your Honorable Body will not view this matter lightly, but will give it the consideration which it justly deserves, and if you cannot see your way clear to purchase both of the automobiles, then I hope you will buy at least one."

During the year there were sixteen alarms sounded, with a combined loss of $3,197 on buildings, and $548 loss on contents of the buildings.

The following bills were read and ordered paid:

"Good Things to Eat."

The Mother's meeting of St. James church will hold a sale of "good things to eat" tomorrow at 10.30 a. m., bread, cakes, pies, soup and potato salad, at the home of Mrs. Mulhelland, 814 Wood street.

Mrs. William Davis' class of the Methodist Sunday school will hold a sale of "good things to eat" tomorrow at 209 Cedar street, commencing at 10 a. m., pies, cakes, bread, sweet biscuit and chicken soup, also, fresh roasted peanuts.

Birthday Surprise Party.

On Saturday evening, November 8, friends and relatives from Philadelphia, Tacony and Bristol gave Arthur Britton, of Bristol, a birthday surprise party. The music as furnished by five young men of Philadelphia. Mr. Britton received several beautiful presents including a large birthday cake with a rose-bud holding a candle for every year of his age. The party was greatly enjoyed by all those present.

Bristolian Gets Loan License.

On Monday afternoon an application for a license to carry on a loan business in Bristol was granted by the court to Ernest J. LaClair, who testified that the capital would be $8,000 and said that he was a naturalized citizen of the United States, aged 38 years. A bond in the sum of $5,000 was filed.

The Swain Memorial Fountain.

Work on the beautiful memorial drinking fountain, which the W. C. T. U. is to present to Bristol, is progressing so rapidly that in a few weeks it will be ready for shipment. As has been previously stated, it will be placed at Walnut and Radcliffe streets by courtesy of the Odd Fellows, and will be an object of beauty, as well as of great usefulness. All who are interested in making Bristol a better, bigger and more beautiful town should be interested in this project, the first, it is hoped of many that will be made in the near future.

Nearly one hundred and fifty dollars has been contributed, mostly in small sums, but several hundred dollars more will be needed to complete the necessary amount. Those who have given have done so without solicitation, because they wished to be counted in among those who are helping to beautify Bristol.

Some have given in memory of dear departed ones, and the Fountain committee has been encouraged by the sympathy expressed by many, even persons living outside the borough. It is hoped that some who we know expect to contribute largely will send their gifts soon, to the treasurer, Mrs. F. Lehman, 320 Radcliffe street.

The fountain is for everybody and all should lend a hand to assist those who began the movement to a successful completion of the work.

The engagement of Miss Helen Silber, of Philadelphia, to William Farnow, a prominent merchant of Hazelton, Pa., has just been announced. Miss Silber is well known in the borough having resided here for sometime.

U. S. SENATOR TO SPEAK TO MEN

United States Senator Thomas Stirling, of South Dakota, will address the men's meeting in the Bristol Baptist church on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Senator Stirling comes to Bristol upon the recommendation of Senator Clapp.

Senator Stirling moved from Springfield, Ill., to South Dakota in 1882. He served in numerous public capacities as district attorney, member of the constitutional convention 1889 and was a member of the senate of the first state Legislature in 1890. In 1891 he was made dean of the college of law of the State University, which position he held until September, 1911. He was elected to the United States Senate January 22, 1913, to succeed Robert J. Gamble.

RADCLIFFE STREET RESIDENCE SOLD

Fred I. Kraft, agent, has sold the handsome stone residence property, corner of Radcliffe and Washington streets, belonging to the estate of the late John Dorrance, to Francis J. Byers, agent for a Philadelphia purchaser, for $9,000. The property is one of the handsomest in Bristol and represented an original investment of $25,000.

Traffic on Canal Curtailed.

Traffic on the canal from the coal regions will be cut short this season on account of the heavy rains and high waters washing the coal dirt down, and filling up the channel. No more boats will be loaded this season on the Lehigh Division. Those boats already loaded will come down, and stone boats and soft coal boats will run as usual on the Delaware Division until the usual time for closing the season's work.

Brennan-Kellegher Wedding.

On Wednesday morning at 9.30 o'clock Miss Helen Kellegher, of Swain street, became the bride of Charles V. Brennan, of Bristol, the ceremony being performed in St. Marks church, by Rev. Father Bourne. The bride was attended by Miss Anna Brennan, a sister of the groom, while Joseph Keating acted as best man. The bride wore a blue travelling suit with blue hat, and the bridesmaid was dressed in a blue suit with black hat. The bride was the recipient of numerous handsome gifts in silver, glass, china and linen. The happy couple left immediately after the wedding for a honeymoon trip to Harrisburg and other points of interest. Upon their return they will reside at 558 Swain street. The groom is the son of the late Coroner Brennan.

Mrs. Singley Stricken with Paralysis.

Mrs. Fanny Singley, of 323 Otter street, had a narrow escape from death on Tuesday morning. She is 65 years of age, and while going down stairs was stricken with paralysis. A daughter caught her as she was falling thus preventing her from injury. A physician was summoned and ministered to the afflicted one who is slightly improved.

Bible Presented to Badger School.

The Badger school was filled on Wednesday evening, when the school was presented with a Bible, by Washington Camp, No. 789, P. O. S. of A. The members of the camp were escorted by Fidelity Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., with the Liberty Fife and Drum Corps to the school house, where a very interesting programme of recitations and patriotic songs were rendered, under the direction of Miss Tomlinson, the teacher. The school room had been prettily decorated with the stars and stripes. After the programme by the scholars, Harry A. Rich, in behalf of Washington Camp, in a few well chosen remarks presented the Bible to the school, which was accepted by Director Shipp. W. H. Bradley was introduced and gave an historical address on the Bible, which was greatly appreciated by the audience. At the conclusion of the programme in the school room, Fidelity Guards gave an exhibition drill on the lawn of the school.

Medical Society Meets.

The Bucks County Medical Society met in the Fountain House, Doylestown, yesterday, with an attendance of forty-three physicians, which was a greater number than had ever been at any Doylestown meeting. Bristol was honored by the election of Dr. W. C. LeCompte for president for the year. Dr. Alfred E. Fretz, of Sellersville, and Dr. George M. Grim, of Ottsville were elected vice presidents, and Dr. A. F. Myers, of Blooming Glen, was re-elected secretary and treasurer, which position he has held for many years. After the business meeting, a fine dinner was served, after which the papers and discussions on anesthetics were given. It was concluded that by far the safest anesthetic was sulphuric ether, statistics showing that but one death in 25,000 administrations had resulted. Those present from Bristol and vicinity were: Doctors Pursell, LeCompte, Wagner, Lehman and Carter.

FOUR HUNDRED SLOGANS OFFERED

Mostly Children Submitted Unsuitable Mottoes for Chamber of Commerce.

At a meeting of the Publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce of Bristol held at the Algonquin Club on Tuesday evening the members had a task in considering nearly four hundred slogans which were submitted in the competition for a suitable phrase to typify Bristol's newly awakened civic spirit. All but about a half dozen were rejected by the committee as being entirely foreign to the purpose and intent of the object of the committee.

Nine-tenths of the slogans were submitted by school children who evidently did not have a clear understanding of the matter.

One enthusiastic youth evidently had visions of winning the five dollar prize when he suggested as the borough motto: "Grundy Forever."

Most of the slogans were inappropriate, the half-dozen or so that embodied any degree of merit were submitted by the committee to the regular meeting of the Chamber of Commerce which was held at the Elks' Home last evening.

"Bristol, the Logical Location," "Keep Your Eye on Bristol," "Bigger, Better Bristol," were some of the best phrases submitted.

The Publicity committee is making arrangements to erect two large sign boards at the eastern and western approaches to the borough along the railroad track.

FORGER SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

Cashed Forged Checks in Morrisville and Yardley.

Howard O. Housel, who is said to be the son of a well-to-do Belmar business man, was sentenced by Judge Ryan at Doylestown to the Eastern Penitentiary for a term of not less than two and one-half years and not more than ten years on the charge of forgery. The defendant pleaded guilty to the charge.

Housel forged a number of checks on Henry Comfort, of Fallsington, and on Mr. Comfort's farmer, William Lovett. Housel worked for for Mr. Lovett. The checks cashed in Morrisville were made out on the First National Bank, of Trenton, with William Lovett's name forged to them.

Some of the Morrisville victims of the forgery were B. B. Johonson, $25; Charles Muschert, $3.60; William Hepper, $6; Howard Sultzbach, $3; E. D. Titus, $10, and several others. From Morrisville he went to Yardley, where he forged the name of Henry Comfort. On these checks he buncoed Carl Rich of $5; E. Y. Barnes, $15. When he attempted to cash one for $3.75 at the Yardley Mills his arrest was caused.

He spent his money having a good time in Philadelphia. When arrested a diary was found on the convict in which he kept a record of his accounts. One entry showed $136 in checks forged and cashed by him in Morrisville, Yardley, Trenton and other places. He blamed drink for his wrongdoing. District Attorney Boyer stated that a warrant had been received from the New Jersey authorities for offenses committed in that state.

MORTUARY.

THOMAS DOYLE.

In the death of Thomas Doyle, on Monday last, Bristol has lost another of its old residents. Mr. Doyle came to Bristol in 1851, when 12 years of age. He secured employment on the canal and for twenty years was a boatman, owning several boats and continuing in that service until 1870, when he gave up boating and entered the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. In his forty years' service with the company he occupied several important positions, the last one which he held for several years was storekeeper at Tacony. Four years ago he was retired on pension, having reached the age of seventy. Mr. Doyle is survived by two sons, Patrick, of Tacony, and Thomas, and two daughters, of Bristol, and two daughters, Mary, of Bristol, and Mrs. Etta McCarnens, of Brooklyn, N. Y., also two sisters, Mrs. Katharine Keating, of Bristol, and Mrs. Mary Hayden, of Brooklyn, N. Y. The funeral was held yesterday morning with high mass at 10 o'clock in St. Marks church. Interment was made in St. Marks church yard.

ANNA SWAIN.

The funeral of Mrs. Anna Swain, 76 years of age, who died at the residence of her daughter, in Burlington, on Saturday last, was held from the residence of her son, Axel Swain, 204 Mill street, on Tuesday afternoon. Interment was made in Bristol cemetery.

GEORGE E. BAINES.

George Evans Baines of Eddington, died on Tuesday night, of abscess of the liver, after a few weeks' illness, aged 58 years. The funeral will be held tomorrow, with interment at All Saints cemetery, Torresdale.

PROF. FOLEY AT MEN'S MEETING

Two hundred men attended the men's meeting on Sunday afternoon, when Prof. George C. Foley, of the Episcopal School of Divinity; spoke, his subject being, "The Brotherhood of Man." Prof. Foley spoke of the every day side of Christian life, showing that the little acts of kindness and help are as essential to living one's religion, as the greater acts; that the helpful hand to those about one in their daily life, is as important as lip profession and church going. In losing the speaker said, "I wanted to make this more of an address than a sermon, and so have reserved the text for the last, which is "And Joseph said 'ye shall not see my face again, until ye bring your brother with you.' "

Bucks County Club Gives House-Warming.

When Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Sassaman opened the door of their home at 84 Milford avenue, Newark, N. J., Monday evening, November 3rd, they were greatly surprised to see the "Bucks County Club," which had gathered to give them a "house-warming," and celebrate their taking possession of their new, beautiful and commodious house, into which they had just moved from Broad street. The Sassaman's, with their usual hospitality, made the club welcome and received the congratulations of all upon the construction, conveniences and completeness of the house and best wishes for years of happiness therein. A luncheon was served about 11 p. m., after which the members returned to their respective homes.

The office furniture and personal effects of Charles A. Wilson, will be sold at sheriff's sale today at 210 Radcliffe street.

Put on Your Glasses
AND READ THIS:
I can stand for the chap with the monogramed shirt,
And the boy with his trousers upturned;
And the man with the hat made of plush I assert,
I can stand, though the fad I have spurned.
I can stand for the guy with the white in his vest,
And not even grin when he passes,
But I snicker and smile, when I gaze on, the while,
The guy with the tortoise shell glasses.
I don't mind the man with the rakish green hat
With the bow in the back, nor the fellow
Who trims off each shoe with an up-to-date spat,
Nor the brother whose gloves are bright yellow.
But I'm ready to flee, when that dandy I see,
The guy with the tortoise shell glasses.
I can put up with him who must trim off each sleeve
With a row of pearl buttons, and note
In silence the man (though I secretly grieve)
With the braid on the edge of his coat.
The man with the handkerchief worn to be seen
I suffer my feelings harasses.
But I am sworn to smile, with my left and my right,
The guy with the tortoise shell glasses.
All the go, however.

A Bit of Solder

A Story of Scotland Yard Efficiency Versus Yankee Cuteness

By MARION B. CURTISS

"Stivers, give me a room."

"I'm full, Clapham, but I've always made room for any of you fellows from Scotland Yard who has asked to be taken care of, for I know you're after game. Anything of importance?"

"Well, it's not exactly important, and yet it is important in one sense, seeing that there's a game to be played on us and we've got to make preparations to meet it. Have you any suspicious persons in the house?"

"Now you speak of it, a man came in yesterday. I don't think he's a regular crook, simply a measly chap that might be hired to do some dirty work."

"That fits exactly. I shall need your assistance, so I may as well show you my hand. You have this Mrs. Striker of Chicago here, whose coming to London has been made so much of in the society journals. These American millionairesses are, some of them, trying to beat the New York customs officers, and they do so quite often. The American detective is a very dull bird beside our English outlooker. This Mrs. Striker, I've learned, has bought the diamond that the Hardcastle family has been trying to find a purchaser for. They finally sold it to her for £20,000."

"Well?" said the landlord.

"Mrs. Striker is not going to pay American duty on a stone that can be carried in a shoe heel or a bouquet of flowers or a watch case with the works removed to make room for it or a dozen other places of concealment, but the trouble is that the news has gone over that she's bought the Hardcastle gem, and those muttonheads of New York will be on the lookout for her. She's to sail on the Romania on Wednesday, and they'll naturally expect that the diamond goes with her.

"Now, we of Scotland Yard are up to all these smuggling tricks and are on to this game. I don't need to give away how I got the story, but I got it all the same. Tomorrow morning Mrs. Striker will be found bound and gagged in her room and the diamond gone. The New York chaps will see an account of the loss cabled to the newspapers, and when the lady arrives she will not meet with the attention she deserves."

"But what's the need of a robbery if it's all a fake?"

"That's where our part over here comes in. Mrs. Striker will be hounding us Scotland Yard men to recover her diamond and giving talk to the newspaper reporters. There's doubtless some confederate of hers right here in your hotel who will take the blame of robbery."

"I see; he'll take it and return it to her secretly."

"No, he won't do any such thing. Do you suppose she'd trust it to a fellow like that? What she wants him for is to make it appear that he robbed her of it. And how can we Scotland Yard men get it back from him when he hasn't got it?"

"There's that measly chap I spoke to you about now—that red headed fellow just going into the smoking room. He booked himself from Brumagem, but I know by his accent that he's an American. London is full of American lies such. I shouldn't wonder if they [illegible] you fellows busy looking after them."

"So they do. I'm glad you've pointed him out to me; it will save my hunting him up. What's the number of his room?"

"No. 76. Come to think of it, Mrs. Striker's room is 75, directly opposite."

"Phew! What a simple game it is, to be sure!"

"What are you going to do?"

"Make sure he doesn't leave his room tonight after he goes up. I shall sprinkle a fine powder on the sill and in front of the door. He's not going to have anything to do with the matter except to take the blame for stealing the diamond. I'll prove in the morning that he didn't go into Mrs Striker's room, for I shall put some powder before her door too. All the police will have to do when the newspapers howl at us is to bring forward my proof."

"You are a sharp one, sure enough. Well, I'll give you 72, a bit farther along the corridor. Going up now?"

"No, not till I've done some watching of this red headed chap. I must satisfy myself that he's the confederate. I don't propose to leave some one else to do the job while I'm watching the wrong man."

The landlord went behind his counter, and the detective went into the smoking room, where he found the red headed man, whom he did not lose sight of till the latter went to his room. Clapham, not satisfied with his powder device, sat up all night looking through a space made by leaving his door ajar. He saw nothing unusual. At 7 o'clock in the morning the door of No. 75 was opened, and a lady's maid hurried downstairs. She soon returned with the clerk, and the two made for Mrs. Striker's room. Clapham followed them into the room and saw Mrs. Striker bound in a chair and gagged. As soon as the gag was taken out she cried:

"It's gone!"

"What's gone?" asked the clerk.

"My diamond."

"Who took it?"

"I don't know. The lock of my door was picked. I heard some one working at it, but before I could decide what to do the door was thrown open and some one came in. There being no light in the room, I couldn't see who he was. I gave a cry, and he sprang upon me, put that thing in my mouth and tied me in the chair. Then he said that if I didn't tell him where the Hardcastle diamond was he would kill me. To save my life I told him that it was under my pillow on the bed. He took it and left me as you see."

The afternoon London newspapers published the fact of the loss of the diamond, but refrained from giving any clew to the robber. Scotland Yard officials looked wise and said nothing. They did not even watch the measly chap with the red head. But Mrs. Striker, to make sure that the news of the loss of her diamond reached New York, cabled the fact to her husband, and an account of the robbery appeared in all the afternoon journals.

People in London were surprised at the apathy of the police in the matter. But there was one man among them who was not apathetic, Chapham. There was a supplementary game on hand that he did not mention to Stivers. He wished to discover that the diamond was still in Mrs. Striker's possession and receive several thousand pounds hush money. When the lady left her room he entered it with a pass key and looked in every nook for the gem. There was not a hollow article or one that could be made hollow in the room that he did not take to pieces. The stone might be contained in one of a cluster of artificial grapes ornamenting one of a number of hats he found in the room and he demolished every grape without finding what he looked for. Some bell shaped buttons he cracked, with the same negative result. At last he was obliged to give up the job.

Meanwhile the red headed man came and went in and out of the hotel. The landlord was anxious to get rid of him, but had no excuse to turn him out. Indeed, he was requested by Clapham not to do so. Clapham was not sure some cue might not yet be derived from him. But nothing turned up. At the sailing of the Romania, Clapham stood on the dock. After the gangplank had been removed and the vessel was well out, who should he see waving his hand to him with a sardonic smile on his face but the measly red headed man he had sat up all night to watch. The Londoner stood gaping at the fellow till he was out of sight, then turned away muttering imprecations on the whole "blarsted" Yankee nation.

Mrs. Striker kept her stateroom for a day or two, then appeared on deck. Everybody on board had heard of her loss, and those who had an acquaintance with her commiserated with her for it. She tossed her head and laughed as though the matter were of no great importance to her, as indeed it was not, for she was rich enough to buy more gems at the same price.

When the Romania was steaming up New York bay, among the crowd of passengers standing on the deck was Mrs. Striker. She wore a very large hat, trimmed elaborately, that she had bought in London not two hours before leaving her hotel for the steamer. She descried a motorboat flying a peculiar flag put out from Staten Island and heading directly for the steamer. When it had come within a few hundred yards of her a gust of wind took her beautiful hat and dropped it on the water. But the motorboat that arrived so timely received it and sped away merrily.

It did not get very far before it was stopped. Soon after the Romania passed Sandy Hook another motorboat was seen following her, and the red headed man from London from the stern was making signals to it, which were evidently understood. As soon as the first boat rescued the hat the second gave it chase, overhauled it and took it in charge.

When Mrs. Striker reached the dock in New York she was arrested for smuggling. The hat was produced, and in a large swelling ornament was the Hardcastle diamond. The face had been removed, the stone inserted and the face soldered in its place again.

"How did you get on to the business, Watkins?" asked the customs inspector.

"Well, you see, I was sent over to track the man who absconded from the —th National bank and was in London when the lady bought the stone. I reckoned she might try to get it in free of duty, and I took a room directly opposite hers at the hotel. She put up a job of robbery on the Londoners in order that it might be cabled over here and put you fellows off your guard. A Scotland Yard man got on to the business, but not on to its true inwardness. The way I located it was this. While shadowing the lady I saw her buy some solder, and the last thing she bought in London was the hat that blew off her head in the bay. Not long ago, you may remember, we had a case of hat blowing. I put the two together and cabled our agency to be on the lookout. The rest you know."

"Well, I'll report the case to the collector of the port. You go up to his office in a few days and you'll find out what the government will do for you. What do you expect?"

"I think, considering the goods are worth $100,000 and the duty will run up pretty well into the thousands, they ought to do something pretty nice for me."

"I think so, too, especially since they wouldn't have got a cent of duty themselves if it hadn't been for you."

Something pretty nice was done for Watkins, but since it was done from a private fund it was never known how much he got out of it.

A MESSAGE TO WOMEN

Who Are "Just Ready to Drop."

When you are "just ready to drop," when you feel so weak that you can hardly drag yourself about—and because you have not slept well, you get up as tired-out next morning as when you went to bed, you need help.

Miss Lea Dumas writes from Malone, N. Y., saying: "I was in a badly run-down condition for several weeks but two bottles of Vinol put me on my feet again and made me strong and well. Vinol has done me more good than all the other medicines I ever took."

If the careworn, run-down women, the pale, sickly children and feeble old folks around here would follow Miss Dumas' example, they, too, would soon be able to say that Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron remedy, had built them up and made them strong.

It is a wonderful, strength creator and body-builder, and we sell it under a guarantee of satisfaction. You get your money back if Vinol does not help you.

P. S. For any skin trouble try our Saxo Salve. We guarantee it.

THE GOLDEN HORSESHOE.

That Was the First Order Founded In This Country.

How many persons have ever heard of the Order of the Golden Horseshoe the first order founded in America?

In 1724, when Virginia extended from the Atlantic into the unknown west, few of her colonists had crossed the Blue Ridge or the Alleghanies. So full of dangers from savages and wild beasts and so full of natural difficulties was the passage of these terrible heights that Governor Spotswood, setting out to discover a pass, looked on the expedition as so hazardous that he took with him a guard of "soldiers, gentlemen and pioneers" armed and carrying provisions. These scaled the pass with great hardships and perils and returned after the governor had cut the name of King George in the rocks on the highest peak.

He then constituted the society, or order, of the Golden Horseshoe. Each man who had scaled this high pass was made a member of it, and to each one he presented a golden horseshoe. On the side was inscribed in Latin, "So It Pleases Him to Cross Mountains."

Any man thereafter who could prove that he had read with his own eyes the name of the king on the height was entitled to become a member of this order.—Chicago Record-Herald.

His Wedding Present.

"I willingly countenance your marriage with my daughter," wrote a physician to his prospective son-in-law, "conditionally on your accepting as a wedding present her mother. As a wife she has not been a success; as a mother-in-law she is at least problematical. At all events, I can endure her temper no longer, and as she expresses a wish to live with her daughter I am sending her along by the next train."

In due course the lady arrived and lived with the young couple for many years.—London Mail.

CONVERTS ONE OF THE JAMES BAND

Cole Younger, Famous Author, Joins the Church.

WAS WOUNDED 28 TIMES.

Pictured as Monster Criminal, He Maintains That He Was Guilty of but One Offense—Has Served Twenty-five Years In Prison—His Own Story of Conversion.

St. Louis.—Cole Younger was once a name which inspired fear throughout Missouri, Kentucky and Kansas. It is the name of a man noted for his fierce fighting spirit, a man who carries the scars of twenty-eight bullet wounds received for fighting—first for a cause, later for spoils. It is now the name of one of the most recent converts to Christianity gained by the Rev. Orville Edgar Hamilton, one of the leading figures of the Christian Evangelists of America.

The conversion took place in an improvised tabernacle in Lees Summit, Mo., recently. The evangelist was assisted in the service by his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stuart. During the revival meeting, when the large audience was swayed to enthusiasm by the words of the preacher and the singing of Mr. and Mrs. Stuart, a giant of a man rose from his seat, literally lifted from her feet a little woman who stood near him, kissed her and walked forward. With the last word of the spoken acceptance Cole Younger, partner of Jesse James and of Quantrell, had come out in the open and embraced the faith whose tenets he has been quietly practicing for many years.

"There is nothing wonderful in my conversion," said Younger.

"I've led an adventurous, turbulent life. The war brought on hate and strife and killing. They murdered my father when I was a schoolboy and I was launched into a life of reprisals and shooting and rough riding, winding up with twenty-five years in prison.

"Now, my folks were all Christians. I was brought up in a Christian home. I am an old man, seventy years old next January, and I have come back, by God's mercy, to the spot where I spent my childhood, to end my days.

"To me, knowing my own soul, it is nothing. Why, forty years ago, when witnesses have testified that I was robbing banks and holding up trains in another part of the country, I was down in Texas teaching a Sunday school class.

"The feeling has been growing strong upon me these last years that my mother's prayers were being answered and that God was leading me by the hand, and so I have just given my heart to him, and I feel that the sins of my past life are blotted out and that I am a child of God."

Although he is pictured in "wild west" tales as monstrously criminal he maintains that he was guilty of but one offense and says his name, along with that of the James brothers and others, was connected with practically every bank robbery and holdup in the west for more than a decade. He admits that he was a member of a band which attempted to rob a bank at Northfield, Minn., of $60,000, said to have been obtained by Union soldiers during the civil war.

He was captured three days after the attempt and served twenty-five years in prison.

BULL DERAILS A TRAIN.

Accident Occurs as Cattle Herd Is Crossing the Track.

Olathe, Kan.—Ten cars of a St. Louis and San Francisco freight train was derailed when the train struck a bull weighing 2,000 pounds near here. The engine and tender passed over the animal without being derailed, but when the empty cars struck it they were thrown from the track.

A herd of cattle was crossing the track when the train approached and three of the animals were killed.

Calls With Conscience Money.

Spokane, Wash.—The Northern Pacific city passenger office received $10.70 in conscience money from Henry Peterson of Los Angeles, who appeared in person at the city office and paid R. S. Skinner the money for a ride from Spokane to Butte, which, he says, he stole twenty years ago.

FLOWERS AS FOOD.

In India the Natives Eat Bassia Tree Blossoms Uncooked.

In these days one would hardly call a dinner of rosebuds a feast, nor should we be inclined to accept an invitation to dine on the blossoms of the pumpkin vine. Yet some Indians, like the old Aztecs, used to esteem these flowers, when properly prepared, a great dainty.

So, in the same way, do natives of many parts of India depend for food upon the blossoms of the bassia tree. They do not need even to cook the flowers, but make a good meal of them raw. These blossoms are described as sweet and sickly in odor and taste. They are sometimes dried in the sun, when they are kept and sold in bazaars as a regular article of diet.

The trees are so highly esteemed that the threat of cutting down their bassia trees will generally bring an unruly tribe to terms. This is perhaps not to be wondered at when it is considered that a single tree will yield from 200 to 400 pounds of flowers. The Parsees cook the flowers and also make sweetmeats of them.

"Nobody would be inclined to deny that smoked fish and smoked meat are agreeable varieties in our bill of fare, but few, perhaps, would feel ready to plead guilty to a taste for smoked flowers. And yet, when we give to the clove its well earned place among flavorings we are making use of a smoked flower bud. The buds grow on a small evergreen and are plucked from the ends of the branches before they expand. Then they are dried in the sun and smoked over a wood fire to give them the brown color.—Philadelphia Press.

54 HOURS WORK A WEEK.

Limit For Women and Girls Under New Pennsylvania Law.

Harrisburg, Pa.—Pennsylvania's new woman's employment law is now in effect. The limit of hours of labor for women and girls is fifty-four a week, except in the home and on the farm. The new law prohibits the employment of women or girls for more than six consecutive days and not more than ten hours in any one day.

Forty-five minutes must be allowed for the midday meal and a rest period of the same length after continuous employment for six hours. Night employment is limited to telephone operators over eighteen and to managers, superintendents, clerks and stenographers.

The department of labor and industry, Commissioner Jackson says, will be reasonable and work to bring about the conditions required by the statute without entailing unnecessary hardship. The law will cause many changes in industrial and mercantile establishments. Its applicability to theatrical people will be worked out after advice from the attorney general's department.

CLUBHOUSE FOR SERVANTS.

Mistresses Provide a Place For Them to Receive Their "Steadies."

Los Angeles, Cal.—The hired girl problem approached one step nearer solution in the announcement that the Friday Morning club, the largest woman's organization in Los Angeles, would establish a home club for domestics.

This home club, which is to be established in one of the most fashionable residence districts, is to be a little like a woman's club but more like a man's. There will be opportunities for culture, of course, but there will be also places to eat and, more important still, parlors to entertain in.

Hired girls, therefore when they join the club, need not be compelled to entertain their "steadies" in the kitchen.

BOY SEVEN FEET TALL CAN'T FIND WORK

Abnormal Height Causes Lad Many Inconveniences.

New Orleans.—Only a "kid" and seven feet one and a quarter inches tall is J. Willis Kenelly. And he's still growing.

Mr. Kenelly, who is barely twenty years old, comes from Columbia, Marion county, Miss. When he went to Mississippi A. and M. college at the beginning of the year's term they barred him from football practice because the team quit the field in a body when he came out for "scrimmage work."

"Why, if a man tackles him he will fall halfway to the goal," argued the team. The coach, not wishing to take any undue advantage of opponents like that, decided that Kenelly could not play.

So when he left to go home again because they barred him from playing he took a day coach and sat up all night.

"What's the use of paying for a sleeper when they don't make the berths long enough for me to get into?" he said. He is having trouble obtaining work too. "My height is against me," he said.

Whenever Kenelly goes into a tailor shop in Columbia they get down the longest piece of cloth and start unwinding it.

"Yes, I was about the average size until I was seventeen years old, and then I got a good start and kept on growing."

Barney Lewis, who, it is alleged, robbed a Northeastern train about a year ago, came from the same county as Kenelly. "He isn't a small man either," said the giant. "I tell you they don't grow small in that county."

WRITES UPSIDE DOWN.

Boy, Normal Otherwise, Sings and Figures Backward.

Huntington, W. Va.—Russell Baker, eight, has been attending school for two years and makes all his letters and figures upside down. He writes from left to right and sings his low notes high and his high notes low.

Dr. C. M. Hawes, accompanied by Dr. Lindsey Vinson, specialist in children's diseases, spent hours with the child endeavoring to find exactly what was wrong, but they confess themselves mystified. The only explanation they attempt is that the boy's mind and sight are as a camera's eye, in which everything looks upside down. The boy is perfectly normal and has no other defects.

BEE STINGS HALT WEDDING.

Man Requires Medical Treatment Just Before the Ceremony.

Moselle, Miss.—Dr. R. H. Cranford while preparing for his wedding hitched his horse too near some beehives. The bees attacked the horse, and in unhitching the animal Dr. Cranford was so severely stung that he became unconscious. The horse wrecked the buggy and probably will die. Dr. Cranford was revived by fellow physicians, and his marriage with Miss Lena Miller took place about an hour late.

Dr. Cranford is treasurer of the town and surgeon physician for the New Orleans Northeastern railroad.

A Fleet Street Story.

Henry Arthur Broome, in "The Log of a Rolling Stone," says that in 1871 he was engaged in wood engraving for Punch when one day, at the end of the week, short of money, he stood gazing longingly at the cherries on a costermonger's barrow which stood abreast of the offices of the London Telegraph. His gaze arrested the attention of a gentleman whom he had often seen there before, though not at midday.

Then a kindly deed was done. The gentleman, averting his gaze from me a moment, purchased two paper bags of this fruit. Then, placing one of them in the pocket of his capacious dust coat, he turned to me with the sweetest smile imaginable and without a word offered the other one to me, which I gratefully accepted. He then passed on and went upstairs to the offices of the newspaper. That was my first introduction to the prince of journalists, George Augustus Sala.

A Limit to His Power.

A curious historical anecdote is handed down from the time of James I. James, being in want of £20,000, applied to the corporation for a loan. The corporation refused. The king insisted. "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliament to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster, and then think what will become of you!" "May it please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation to the merchants of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you."

BRAMWELL BOOTH VISITS AMERICA

Here to Inspect Salvation Army, Which He Heads.

STORY OF HIS CAREER.

Expected to Make Peace With His Brother, Who Is Head of Rival Organization—Leader of Army Is Described as Man of Modern Ideas Was Loved by His Father.

New York.—General Bramwell Booth successor to his father, the founder of the Salvation Army, has come into this country on his first visit as commander in chief of more than 100,000 "fighters for the Lord." The general went to Canada to inspect the posts in that country and then will return to New York to open a nation wide campaign at Carnegie hall on Sunday afternoon Nov. 23.

According to a statement issued from the national headquarters, "he will speak as the head of an organization with which he has been identified since his early school days, speak with the authority of one fully cognizant of all the important events in the history of the movement since he became his father's chief supporter and first aid."

There is a lingering hope that the present head of the Salvationists, who is described as a man of modern ideas in army government, may come to some understanding with his brother, Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America. It is said that Ballington Booth has intimated a desire to meet his brother.

General Bramwell Booth is in his fifty-seventh year. He was born at Halifax, England, in 1856 and was named William Bramwell Booth. In early years, in deference to the wishes of his parents, he dropped the William.

His father announced the birth of this son in these words: "It is with feelings of unutterable gratitude and joy that I have to inform you that at 8:30 last night my dearest Kate presented us with a healthy and beautiful son. The baby is a plump, round faced, dark complexioned, black pated little fellow—a real beauty."

"In her oldest son," wrote Commissioner Booth-Tucker some years ago, "Mrs. Booth presented the world with a ruler, an organizer and a financier of unusual capacity."

At the time of Bramwell's birth the Salvation Army probably was a remote idea in the mind of his father, then a minister of the Methodist New Connection and known simply as the Rev. William Booth. Bramwell Booth was about ten years old when his father launched his evangelistic work at Mile End, which was followed by the Christian Mission and later took the permanent form of Salvation Army. Young Booth began at the bottom. Though he was his father's favorite son, he was not spared. He was disciplined in a school "as severe," says one biographer, "as either West Point or Sandhurst." In the general offices of the army he cleaned inkwells and performed duties usually assigned to a janitor. He studied theology under Rev. Charles G. Finney, an American.

He developed a keen sense of the need of business capacity and businesslike methods in the conduct of the material side of the army. Constant association with the field officers taught him that "the laborer is worthy of his hire;" that these men and women should have a decent living in return for their activities on the streets and in the houses of the poor. He is credited with revolutionizing the business conduct of the army.

Describes Signals From Mars.

Geneva.—The Swiss astronomer, Lecoultre, in making public the results of his researches concerning Mars which have continued for five years, guardedly hints that the Martians have been signalling to the earth. He observed intermittent luminous apparitions resembling the light of powerful searchlights which appeared always in the same spots.

USELESS THINGS.

Ghosts of the Past That Were Formidable In Their Time.

"An enumeration of the useless," says Richard Jeffries, "would almost be an enumeration of everything hitherto pursued."

What a pile of junk the men of the world labored to produce!

Heap up all the books that are of no possible use, the contents of ancient libraries, books of heraldries, theogonies and discarded sciences, books of wrangling and tedious arguments the world has willingly forgot, and the myriads of chaff products that pour like a ceaseless Niagara from the modern press; heap them up into one mountain, and from its top you could look down upon the Himalayas.

Think of the ruined cities of the orient, the ghostly temples of Egypt, the broken fragments of castles by the Rhine and the Danube, the Coliseum, the Golden House of Nero, the Garden of Hadrian at Tivoli! Think of the useless sciences men studied, the faded religions they once believed, the inconsequential wars of history, the reams of antiquated law, the gold gathered together only to be misspent! Think of the useless passions, dreams, thoughts and desires of men!

One is sometimes tempted to think that we front the great questions of life, love and death as freshly, with as little advantage from experience, as the cave man.—Dr. Frank Crane in Woman's World.

IMMIGRATION INCREASES.

August Total 43,800 Above That of Last Year—Fewer Leaving.

Washington.—Figures indicate that immigration to the United States is on the increase. Statistics made public by the bureau of immigration show that the total number of aliens admitted for August was 126,180, compared with 82,377 for the same month last year, an increase of 43,803. Of the total number, 81,623 were males and 41,557 females. Italy was the largest contributor, sending 31,762 aliens.

A total of 2,479 persons were debarred for various causes during August.

The total number of immigrant aliens who departed from the United States during August was 23,242, compared with 25,725 for the corresponding month in 1912. Of the total, 17,301 were males and 5,941 females.

WAITS YEARS TO BANK $500.

Woman Loses $396 Interest Through Her Long Delay.

Watertown, S. D.—A peculiar occurrence took place at the First National bank in this city.

A woman living in the country near here brought in a package containing $500 that H. D. Walruth had wrapped up and paid to her Dec. 28, 1900, thirteen years ago. The package had lain at the house unopened during that time and the woman brought it to the First National bank and took out a time certificate of deposit on it.

The case being a peculiar one, Mr. Walruth figured up how much interest that money would have accumulated if the certificate had been taken out in 1900 and found that the $500 would have earned $369 interest during the time.

Pied Pipers Celebrate Slaughter of 10,013 Rodents.

Vaulue, O.—Seven hundred pied pipers attended a dinner here to celebrate the windup of the greatest rat killing crusade ever held here. In an effort to rid Amanda township of rats two teams of 600 men were formed. In six weeks they killed just 10,013 rodents.

Amanda is now believed to be the freest of rats of any township in the state if not in the country. Every means—traps, poison and guns—was employed in the ruthless work of extermination.

POWERS CRIES OUT, "I AM THAT MAN!"

Congressman Gives Professor a Great Surprise.

Washington.—The law students at Georgetown university are telling of a dramatic scene in a classroom in which Dr. Holmes Conrad, professor of law, and Caleb Powers, the Kentucky congressman, were the actors.

In a lecture to a post graduate class Dr. Conrad was denouncing public sympathy for criminals and declared that some, through a mistaken public sentiment, were carried to places of power when released from prison.

"Who was that man in Kentucky who killed another and was sent to congress?" asked the professor of the class, to illustrate his point.

During the hush that immediately fell over the room Caleb Powers, a student sitting in the front row, rose to his feet with perfect composure and in a clear voice said.

"I am that man, doctor; I was not guilty."

Dr. Conrad apologized, continued his lecture and afterward made a formal apology to Powers, saying he had not known the congressman was a member of his class.

Powers spent eight years, three months and three days in Kentucky prisons fighting for his life. He was charged with complicity in the murder of Governor Goebel.

The Moth and the Candle.

It is not because the moth is lighthearted heedless and utterly frivolous, as we have always been told, that it plunges headlong into the flame, but because of the way that its body is constructed, says Kaempffert, the well known student of physical science. There are two symmetrical points, exactly alike chemically, on the moth's body—namely, its eyes. If the rays of light modify the chemical conditions of one side more than the other then the moth's power of movement is affected. There is a stronger muscular tension on one side than on the other, and the moth is forced to move toward the source of light. If, however, one of the eyes is removed the chemical symmetery is destroyed and instead of plunging into the flame it moves about in a circle. There are other animals and insects besides the moth which are hopelessly in the grip of light. If a snail is placed between a white wall and a black wall the unequal lighting forces it to crawl in a circle.—Chicago Tribune.

Careless.

"Have you made a special study of the subject on which you are going to lecture?"

"No," replied the gifted speaker. "I tried that once, and I got so interested in the subject that I didn't have time to write the lecture."—Washington Star.

DANIELS TO MAKE NAVY A SCHOOL

Under New Plan Sailors Are to Be Taught Many Trades.

OFFICERS ACT AS TEACHERS

Dream of Secretary Is to Utilize Vessels and Equipment For the Mental, Moral and Physical Uplift of Enlisted Men—Electricians, Mechanics and Stenographers to Be Trained.

Washington.—"It is my ambition as secretary of the navy to make the service a great technical university, whose doors will swing wide open to the youth of America. In my opinion every ship and every navy yard should be a school, and every officer of the navy a schoolteacher. In this way we can give to every young man who enters the navy a chance to better himself and fit himself for an honorable career in other walks of life and at the same time increase the knowledge, the usefulness and the efficiency of the personnel of the service."

These are the words of Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, who said a few days ago that he confidently expected during the four years he is slated to be the head of the navy department to make the United States navy not only the greatest fighting organization in the world, but also the world's greatest school of technology.

The dream that Mr. Daniels wants to realize is the utilization of the navy for the mental, moral, and physical uplift of the young men who enlist for the service afloat. He would make of them expert electricians, skilled mechanics of the highest type, wireless telegraph operators, artificers, stenographers, shipfitters, and woodworkers.

The secretary called attention to the fact that already there are in operation schools for the electrical training of bluejackets at the navy yards in Brooklyn and San Francisco. There is an artificers' school at Norfolk, Va., and a school for machinists at Charleston, S. C., while every battleship, every cruiser, and every torpedo destroyer affords a splendid field for the practical training of the sailor in almost any one of the great trades.

But this is only a part of the plan that Secretary Daniels has evolved for the betterment of young Americans who serve their country on board men-of-war. If they are to be electricians, skilled mechanics, capable carpenters, reliable wireless men, Mr. Daniels considers that it is the duty of the officers of the service, whose advantages have been great, to teach them also to speak and write good English, to spell correctly, to know geography, and, if time permits, to take them into the realms of higher mathematics, and perhaps the classics.

So it is that Secretary Daniels, who has fallen head over heels in love with his job and who has found the men of the navy, officers and bluejackets alike, to be clean cut and clean living, has determined that the navy shall be America's greatest school of technology—a school where any deserving boy, no matter how poor, may have a chance to better himself morally, mentally, physically. The president of this biggest of all the world's technical schools will be the secretary himself; its vice presidents will be the commanders in chief of the Atlantic, Pacific and Asiatic fleets; the principals will be the commanding officers.

Then, of course, there are the great technical schools on shore, at the head of each of which is an officer of high rank and undoubted ability. Than these schools for the training of the electricians, mechanics and other skilled men needed for the navy there are none better in this or any other country. And it should be remembered that at each of these training stations there is a master of the sword, whose duty it is to see to the physical training of the bluejacket students.

Better Than a Clock.

"My father," said the small boy to the lady who was calling on his mother, "is a great man. He knows what time it is without even looking at his watch."

"What do you mean, Tommy?" queried the visitor.

"Oh, when I holler out an' ask him what time it is in the morning, he always says it's time to get up. An' when I ask him what time it is in the evenin', he allus says, 'Time to go to bed, Tommy.' Oh, I tell you my father is a great man!"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Her Forebodings.

"Why are you worrying, dear?" he asked after they had got things settled in their cunning little bungalow.

"I was just thinking that if you turn out to be as great as I expect you to be and we have any children, they will have to take their places among the idle rich."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Minutes Mean Dollars IN TREATING ANIMALS

Doubtless you know the danger of delayed treatment of colic and other diseases. You also realize that wrongly applied remedies are often worse than no treatment at all. In other words, not to diagnose a disease accurately may prove fatal. Every owner should be able to recognize an ailment and give correct treatment at the first symptoms. Prompt action is the great secret of treating horses. Minutes mean dollars. Of course proper treatment is always necessary. That is just how Humphreys' 600 page Veterinary Manual will prove so valuable to you. It is by F. Humphreys, M. D., V.S., and teaches how to diagnose and give proper treatment. This book will save you hundreds of dollars and costs you nothing. It will be sent absolutely free on request to any farmer in order to introduce Humphreys' Veterinary Remedies. Remember, it is absolutely free. You do not have to order any remedies to secure the book. Address, Humphreys' Homeopathic Medicine Company, 156 William Street, New York City. This is a splendid opportunity to obtain a veterinary treatise that you should have in your library. As a reference work you will find it invaluable. To have it in the time of need will be worth many dollars, whereas it will cost you but a post card by writing for it now.

This bank gives no customer undue advantage over any other.
The smallest account receives the same care and attention as the largest, and is warmly welcomed.
It corresponds with an extensive network of other banks and large business houses, thereby gaining many advantages for its depositors.
It has served four generations of Bucks county people faithfully and well.
In time of doubt a balance in a strong bank is like an anchor to windward in a storm.
